U. S. FIRST ARMY SMASHES SIEGFRIED LINE

Marines Establish Beachhead on Palau Island Group

First Division Closing in on Peleliu Airport

Guadalcanal Heroes In Bitter Attacks

By VERN HAUGLAND

UNITED STATES PACIFIC FLEET HEADQUARTERS, PEARL HARBOR, Sept. 15 (AP)—American marines of the First division, heroes of Guadalcanal, have established a beachhead a mile and one half long on the southwestern shore of Peleliu island in the Palau group, 515 miles from Davao, headquarters announced today.

The marines, throwing back several Japanese counterattacks, closed in upon Peleliu airport, the principal airfield in the Palau group.

8,000 Japs on Island
Peleliu is only six miles long and is defended by an estimated 8,000 Japanese of the possibly 40,000 stationed in the Palau area.

The 5:30 p. m. communiqué said casualties during the first day of the assault, (today Manila time) were light.

However, the Japanese had the beaches under sporadic mortar and artillery fire and they used tanks in their counterattacks.

In carrier-plate attacks on Peleliu immediately preceding the landings, one plane and four flight personnel were lost.

The Palau success east of the Philippines was matched by another, 300 miles south of Mindanao, announced today by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Okinawa, in the Halmahera, American invaders achieved all objectives within a few hours after landing there yesterday and already air bases are being built for intensified attacks on the Philippines.

Threat to Philippines
These invasions pose a double pronged threat to the Philippines, which previously had been under attack four days by carrier-borne typhoons that demolished 501 Japanese planes and 173 surface vessels.

First communiques announcing the invasions, issued by MacArthur and Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, indicated operations were proceeding satisfactorily.

Carrier aircraft and warships of Adm. William F. Halsey's Third fleet, which had been battering Palau for days, supported the landing operation there. The pre-invasion attacks made it possible for the combat vessels, including the most modern American battle wagons, to shell their targets at close range.

"Explosion Boats" Used by Germans

LONDON, Sept. 15 (AP)—The Germans declared today that a new secret weapon—radio controlled "explosion boats"—had sunk thirty-six Allied ships and damaged fifteen others in the English channel in recent weeks.

The Transocean news agency, quoting a German admiral spokesman, described the weapon as a coupled affair, a light speedboat loaded with high explosives and a command boat.

The speedboat carries an unarmed pilot clad in a rubber suit with a lifebelt until it is about 200 yards from the target. Then the pilot of the explosion boat hits a button which thrusts him into the water and the command boat by radio control guides the explosive unit toward its target. The dunked pilot is picked up by the command boat. "When circumstances are favorable," the broadcast said.

Tydings Will Not Oppose Roosevelt

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15 (AP)—Senator Millard E. Tydings (D-Md.) declared tonight he would "not oppose" President Roosevelt in the forthcoming elections.

One of the most persistent critics of the New Deal administration, Tydings said he would reserve his right to criticize those of the president's policies which he considered unwise.

American Sergeant Shows Supermen How To Escape from Command Post

By WES GALLAGHER

NANCY, FRANCE, Sept. 15 (AP)—If you want to move in and out of a German command post all you need for a passpost is a live grenade carried in plain sight in one hand.

That is how Sgt. Joseph Kekich, who lives in the same Pittsburgh neighborhood as Commando Kelly, made the round trip through German lines.

Kekich was out on night patrol. About to throw a grenade, he was captured by two Germans who could not see the grenade in the dark. They prodded him forward with rifles to the command post.

Kekich marched into the command post with the grenade held high in one hand over his head. The German colonel took one

United Mine Workers Ask Cleanup In Washington; Praise Gov. Dewey

By JOSEPH A. LOFTIS

CINCINNATI, Sept. 15 (AP)—A resolutions committee report put the United Mine Workers on record today as favoring what it termed a "house-cleaning so badly needed" in Washington.

The report declared the Roosevelt administration had an "aim x x x to destroy the UMWA by subtly attacking its leadership," and praised Governor Dewey as a "firm believer in equal justice, fearless and courageous action and a capable administrator."

The resolution said this was "the first administration to abolish collective bargaining as such and substitute x x x the fiat of government agencies. x x x President Roosevelt has intervened directly to prevent labor unity. x x x

"It is significant that the administration's aim was to destroy the UMWA by subtly attacking its leadership, which is again evidenced by the fact that only mine workers have been prosecuted for engaging in strikes under the Smith-Connally-Harnes act, despite all the other strikes by truck drivers, teamsters, and workers in auto, aircraft and kindred industries. x x x

"Governor Dewey, the Republican nominee, during his two-year incumbency as governor of New York, has worked in complete harmony with the legitimate trade unions of his state. Dewey has not met the expectations of the betrayers of labor, the misleaders of labor, or the Communists who dominate the CIO, and the Political Actionites.

"Both as district attorney and as governor of New York, the record reveals Dewey to be a firm believer in equal justice, fearless and courageous action and a capable administrator x x x"

Russians, Poles Pocket Germans

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—

Russian and Polish troops hurled the Germans into a sack formed by the Vistula and Narew rivers northwest of Warsaw yesterday in a steady envelopment of the besieged Polish capital, while Berlin said that other Soviet forces in a powerful new offensive had crossed the Nymank river thirty-seven miles below Riga, Latvian capital on the Baltic sea.

A German broadcast said the Russians threw forty divisions, upwards of 400,000 men, into the fresh offensive on a curving 150-mile front extending from Bauska, south of Riga, into German armies on both sides of the key rail junction of Valga. Soviet troops last were reported within seven miles of Valga.

Moscow Remains Silent
Moscow, as usual at the beginning of Soviet offensives, did not mention this drive which is aimed at the Riga, into German armies on both sides of the key rail junction of Valga. Soviet troops last were reported within seven miles of Valga.

A midnight Soviet communiqué said that 8,000 Germans were killed in four days of fighting before Thursday's capture of Praga, Warsaw's suburb on the east bank of the Vistula river, and the Russians now were believed to be in contact with Poles fighting inside the capital across the river.

Moscow dispatches said it was believed that Red army units already had crossed the river into Warsaw while other units fought for the four bridges, or what's left of them, between Praga and Warsaw.

Capture of Localities
During yesterday's actions the Russians and their collaborating Polish army units captured eleven localities north of Praga. Fighting along the Warsaw-Danzig railway on the east bank of the Vistula they seized Apollo, two and one-half miles northwest of Praga, and a series of other towns stretching twelve miles up to the Narew river at Ryma. These captures herded the Germans back into an eighteen-mile deep funnel formed by the junction of the Narew and Vistula at Modlin, twenty miles northwest of Warsaw.

Although Moscow injected a political note in its communiqué by saying that "not a single soldier of the so-called underground army of the Polish General Bor was found," captured Praga, there were some signs of an easing of the strained relations between Moscow and the Polish government—in exile in London.

Bus Driver Fined

WASHINGTON, Sept. 15 (AP)—Charles Gresholt, 25, of Baltimore, driver of a Greyhound bus which collided with a Capital Transit System bus here July 23, was fined $25 today for failure to control a vehicle at an intersection. Forty-two persons were injured in the accident.

look, grabbed Kekich's hand, took another look and sat down again when he saw the pin was pulled. He then ordered the guards to take Kekich out. The guards were afraid to shoot—if Kekich relaxed his grip the grenade would go off and kill them all.

Outside in the dark, Kekich thought "what the hell," his colonel related later. "He just tossed the grenade over his shoulder and ran."

Kekich got away in the confusion, swam across the Moselle to the American lines. His detailed information on the location of the German command post resulted in an immediate deluge of explosives on the German colonel's head.

The sergeant has been highly commended by his colonel.

Miners for Dewey, Bricker Declares

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 15 (AP)—Coal miners will vote Republican in the November election, Governor John W. Bricker of Ohio predicted today at a news conference preceding his address at a rally opening the 1944 West Virginia Republican campaign.

The Republican vice-presidential nominee declined to comment on the action of the United Mine Workers' convention in Cincinnati, at which a resolution was adopted criticizing President Roosevelt and praising Governor Thomas E. Dewey, Republican presidential nominee.

Governor Bricker told the newsman: "I think the miners will vote the Republican ticket by a large this year. They have been doing it in Ohio."

Reports from West Virginia are encouraging, Bricker said, "and they put West Virginia in the Republican column in the November election."

Hurricane Death Toll Reaches 23
A hurricane that scourged the Atlantic seaboard from the Carolinas to Prince Edward Island was spending its fury in the North Atlantic last night (Friday) after bringing death to at least twenty-three persons in five northeastern states and causing property damage unofficially estimated at $30,000,000.

All the deaths and most of the devastation centered in the New York-New Jersey area, where the Caribbean-born hurricane roared inland Thursday night, and in the New England states, where a similar storm killed nearly 500 persons in 1938.

Uprooted trees, snapped power lines, ruined crops, flooded streets—those were the aftermath of the eighty-five-mile an hour gale that lashed more than 1,500 miles of coastline with torrential rain. More than 5,000 persons were evacuated from their homes and some 300,000 people in the stricken area were out of service.

New Jersey, where two persons were killed and damage to crops and seashore properties exceeded $20,000,000, appealed for federal aid as rescue workers strove to reach hard-hit areas of Long Beach island.

Thirteen persons died, most of them by electrocution, in Metropolitan New York and Long Island, although the city escaped the hurricane's full fury. Store windows were shattered and suburbs flooded in Manhattan. Parts of Long Island, flayed by a ninety-five-mile gale, still were without electric lights.

McLean To Address Associated Press

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15 (AP)—Addresses by President Robert McLean of the Associated Press and a returned war correspondent, along with tours of war industries, will highlight the annual fall meeting of Chesapeake members of the Associated Press in Baltimore Sept. 22-23.

Plans for the affair, announced today by William L. Geppert of Cumberland, chairman of the Chesapeake AP, programmed McLean, publisher of the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, for an address Friday night, Sept. 22, at the annual members' dinner.

Wool Reserves Far Too High, Dewey Asserts

Governor Scores New Deal Policy

EN ROUTE TO COEUR D'ALENE, IDAHO, WITH DEWEY, Sept. 15 (AP)—Told by sheepmen that the government had piled up wool reserves to a "ridiculous extreme," Gov. Thomas E. Dewey declared today that the evidence indicated there is enough on hand now to last civilians four years even if production stops entirely.

"On the basis of their figures," he said after a conference with the growers, "it appears that the accumulating of wool stocks piles have gone very much too far."

At a lengthy news conference before his train left Billings, Mont., for Coeur d'Alene, Idaho, enroute to the west coast the candidate:

1. Expressed hope that the allocation of supplies to Gen. Douglas MacArthur is "now being determined" by the chiefs of staff.

"If you had been president would you have made a different allocation of supplies?" asked Charles Van Dender of the New York Post.

"I am not crying over any spilled milk," Dewey replied.

"Governor, do you mean the milk has been spilled or has been used?" he was asked.

"An answer speaks for itself."

2. Reiterated that the conduct of the war should be kept out of this political campaign and let "in the hands of the chiefs of staff."

3. Declared any relationship between the administration and Sidney Hillman, head of the CIO Political Action Committee, would be "unhealthy if President Roosevelt were re-elected."

4. Said, in reference to the Roosevelt-Churchill meeting at Quebec, that "where the agenda are not made public speculation inevitably arises." But he repeated that Secretary Hull's agreement to keep him informed on international discussions covered only peacetime world organization, not military strategy and actions against the Axis.

5. Termed "tremendously encouraging" the soldier vote returns in the recent Maine state election.

6. Paid tribute to this country's farmers and livestock producers for what he called their "heroic" response to increased war needs despite the "many handicaps placed on them by their own government."

7. Declared the present administration's taxing policies had tended to stifle small industries in Montana and elsewhere, and promised to discuss this point in a campaign speech later.

"If you get a new administration, he told a Montana reporter, "I think your chances of developing small industries will be pretty good. Small industry has continuously declined in the last twelve years, and the entire effect of the tax policy of the administration and of the regulatory policies of the administration has been to put an increasing percentage of national production in the hands of large industry."

Homesick Sailor Asks Leave Be Reduced

BAINBRIDGE, Md., Sept. 15 (AP)—Naval training center officials were puzzling today over the case of the sailor who asked special permission to return before his leave had expired.

The telephone rang on the officer on duty's desk this morning. "Where are you now?" he asked. "I'm home, sir," came the distant voice.

"Well, what's the trouble?" asked the duty commander.

"I'm homesick, sir."

Sidney Hillman Is Heavy Liability To New Dealers, Brownell Declares

NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP)—Republican National Chairman Herbert Brownell, Jr., said today that Democratic charges that Republican orators had injected racial prejudice into the presidential campaign were an "unwarranted interpretation."

Robert E. Hannegan, Democratic national chairman, declared yesterday that the Republicans had raised the issue by constantly referring to Jews to keep the campaign free of "such un-American tactics."

"The exposure of Hillman's attempt to capture control of the Democratic party in no way violates that pledge," Brownell declared.

"Mr. Hillman has proved a distinct liability to the New Deal campaign."

"Everywhere I go I find evidence that the Democratic organization leaders resent his high handed tactics."

"The attempt to make it appear that the issue of Hillman-Browder is a race hate-

Bricker Condemns FDR: Governor Charges President Sells Out His Party to Hillman's P.A.C.

By E. E. EASTERLY

PARKERSBURG, W. Va., Sept. 15 (AP)—Governor John W. Bricker, Republican candidate for vice president, tonight condemned President Roosevelt for what Bricker described as "selling out his party" to the CIO-Political Action Committee.

The Ohio governor, departing from his prepared text to attack the PAC in a speech opening the West Virginia Republican campaign, said:

"The greatest harm they (the New Deal) have done labor lay in 'the vicious alliance with Sidney Hillman and the Political action committee.'"

"Then he added: 'I condemn the president of the United States for selling out his party of great history and service to such a gang, and I condemn Sidney Hillman for the harm he is doing the cause of labor in the United States.'"

"This man Hillman," said the governor, "brought to this country his old world political concepts of power politics and class hatreds, and they have no part in our American political life."

Bricker declared the Republicans could assure full employment after the war.

The Republican candidate for vice president, helping to open a campaign pointed at swinging West Virginia back into the GOP national column for the first time since the 1928 election, asserted:

"Blames New Deal
"You likewise know that the New Deal was never able to provide jobs in peace time. It took a war to put men to work—and but for that war we would still be in the midst of the Roosevelt depression."

"A climate of opportunity must be created to help industry," he said, and outlined a plan.

Tracing the history of the present national administration, Bricker asserted "the trouble with the New Deal was that it had lost faith in the future of America."

He quoted Aubrey Williams, deputy administrator of the WPA in 1936, as saying that "thousands of young men and women leaving our schools each year are destined never to become self-supporting and independent."

Scores New Deal
"This defeatist idea," Bricker declared, "led the New Deal directly to its policy of scarcity in production in industry and in agriculture—a policy which the vice-presidential nominee said resulted in the destruction of jobs.

He said that as crop and livestock production was reduced, thousands of farm hands were deprived of work, and this in turn reduced the number of workers needed by processors, distributors and transporters of goods.

"Thus," Bricker continued, "the New Deal program destroyed not only crops and livestock, but jobs all along the line from the producer to the consumer."

The governor asserted there was only one way to provide jobs—through full production.

Rejecting "the theory that ours is a decadent society that opportunity no longer exists," Bricker said America was just beginning to grow and "there are natural resources and new industries to develop."

At a press conference, Davis was asked, "are we on the threshold of a new wage policy?"

"Inevitably," he replied, adding that "any damn fool can see" that if the country comes to a period of superabundance of labor, we are not going to continue with a policy that was designed to take care of a shortage of labor."

The question has gone "beyond the problem of breaking the Little Steel formula," he asserted.

"There is a possibility, he said, that the board will come out with a program to meet the 'questions of the past and future.'"

Davis called the conference to explain the procedure that the board will follow in considering panel reports submitted this week on demands by the CIO Steel Workers that the little steel formula be modified to allow them a general seventeen cents an hour wage increase.

If the War Manpower commission makes any change in the forty-eight hour work week, it will have to be taken into consideration in establishing the new policy, Davis said, adding that "we will exert whatever power we have to prevent wage reduction."

LONDON, Saturday, Sept. 16 (AP)—Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, first United States Army, is using secret weapons in knocking out German pill boxes and other strong-points in the Siegfried line. It was learned today, but details are being carefully guarded.

All that can be said now is that the new weapons are being carried by assault engineers working closely with infantry, and that they have achieved considerable success.

Strongest Point Broken East of City of Aachen

Assault Launched To Take Cologne

Supreme Headquarters Allied Expeditionary Force

SATURDAY, Sept. 16 (AP)—The United States First Army smashed the Siegfried line at its strongest point east of Aachen today and in a mighty sweep hurled down the last thirty miles toward the great industrial city of Cologne and the Rhine. Climaxing a grand assault that began Thursday, Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges' infantry battered through the main belt of pill boxes and dragon teeth concrete tank barriers on which Hitler relied to keep invaders from his source of military strength in the Rhineland.

While Hitler's homeland defenses crashed, his last stand in Northern France was broken by the fall of Nancy—where Nazi headquarters in France—to Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third Army tanks, which raced on ten to fifteen miles eastward as the enemy reeled in retreat back to the Rhine on a thirty-mile front.

Hitler's west wall buckled at two other points as American forces, redoubling their blows, drove ten miles into Germany north of the fortress of Trier, and glowed into the heart of the Siegfried line south of Aachen at Urum.

Hannegan Opens State Campaign

BALTIMORE, Sept. 15 (AP)—Robert E. Hannegan, chairman of the Democratic National committee, declared tonight that Republican presidential nominee Thomas E. Dewey's attacks on the New Deal were based on the principle of "when in doubt, prosecute."

Hannegan said in an address prepared for a state Democratic meeting launching the party's campaign in Maryland, the advance test of which was released by the Democratic National committee in New York, that Dewey "scores as high man in the making of accusations that blow up in his face."

Citing Dewey's charges that the New Deal had kept the country in a continuous state of depression for seven years and planned to keep a large army after the war because it feared unemployment, and his statement that General Douglas MacArthur should be given a more important role, Hannegan said:

"How will a government that proceeds by prosecution fit into the life of our nation, the lives of our people, over the next four years?"

"But when the job of building up a world organization for peace reaches the delicate, critical stages where it must either stand or fall, how well will the methods of the prosecutor do that job?"

Border Town Captured
The line was shattered along a front of at least ten miles, for that distance south of Aachen the German border town of Lammerdorf was captured.

To their surprise, the hard-bitten doughboys found some of the famed main defenses weakly manned, and some were only fakes, said Associated Press Correspondent Don Whitehead in reporting the long-awaited breakthrough.

Armed with flame-throwers and dynamite, engineers teamed with infantry both in the breakthrough area and to the south at Prum to clear a path for tanks and self-propelled artillery supporting converging fire.

Patton's armor was on the move again in all its old-time reckless, headlong fashion after ten days of stubborn fighting on the Moselle river and south of Nancy, said a front dispatch.

Meet Weak Resistance
Ranging out as far as fifteen miles east of the city the vanguards ran into nothing but scattered resistance.

This sweep threw the Germans defending Metz—last important city held in France by the Germans—into peril and they were faced with possible encirclement or a retreat to the rich Saar industrial basin twenty miles away.

As the United States Seventh Army closed on Belfort at the extreme southern end of the front, it was announced that it had been placed under Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's western front command.

Thus four United States armies—the mightiest striking force ever welded together in American history—were assembled on the battlefields of Europe for the showdown struggle with Germany.

It also was announced that Lt. Gen. Jacob Devers, deputy supreme commander in the Mediterranean, had been placed in command of the Sixth army group on the western front, and it was presumed the Seventh army was included.

Finns Attack Germany in Probable War Move on Side of the Allies

By ROBERT N. STURDEVANT

STOCKHOLM, Sept. 15 (AP)—Germany invaded Finland's strategic and well-fortified island of Suursaari (Hogland) in the Gulf of Finland today, and the Finns, leaving the Germans tonight in eight-minute assault today and will control of one or two hills on the rocky island, which the Germans apparently attempted to seize today's brief session.

The Only Prospect For Tax Relief

OUTSTANDING among the things the American people undoubtedly want from Washington is tax relief for the postwar period.

Few can dispute that the present federal taxing system violates every principle of sound taxation and must be basically revised.

Many months ago the Baruch-Hancock report on reconversion recommended that a postwar tax bill be drafted and put on the shelf for application when the war ends.

Since then similar proposals have been suggested. The Committee for Economic Development came out with a full-scale postwar tax program designed to produce the necessary revenue and to promote a business prosperity that would provide jobs for 55,000,000. The subcommittee on taxation of the Railroad Committee for the Study of Transportation completed and made public some recommendations for a national postwar fiscal policy. The Colmar postwar committee of the House recently declared that something must be done about postwar taxes, and James P. Byrnes, war mobilization director, has agreed that something should be done and has predicted that it would be done.

But what has the Roosevelt administration done in this direction? Absolutely nothing so far as the naked eye can see. Administration tax policies are cleared through the Treasury department, but there is nothing to indicate that its so-called tax experts have a definite postwar taxing program, and there is nothing to justify a hope that they will formulate one.

So, how is this necessary revision to be obtained? There is only one definite prospect. The Republican party purposes to do it. It is working to that end through a Postwar Tax Study committee, which has been instructed to make a national survey of postwar tax ideas, with the end in view of projecting an official Republican program and it has been hard at work on the task. It is rounding out a program designed to effect an over-all tax reduction of fifty per cent. The committee is seeking advice from national farm organizations, chief labor organizations, representative trade bodies and other groups as to how the reduction should be effected and in what proportion it should be distributed among the various classes of taxpayers.

This citizens can look to postwar tax relief in only one direction. The Roosevelt administration gives no assurance of it; the Republicans definitely do.

Another New Deal Lead Is Provided

ANNOUNCEMENT has been made that, after two years of research, the oil industry is ready to produce for the military forces a new super-fuel for aviation so much more powerful than 100-octane gasoline that it will burn maximum horsepower of the Japanese mainland on a "suburban service schedule."

While the chemical details of the new product necessarily are withheld, the Petroleum War Council has disclosed that this fuel called "100-octane plus," is expected to surpass other gasoline in the world in volatility and consequent performance.

So, judging from the policy it has pursued, the department of Justice may be expected to launch a prosecution against the oil producers in recognition of this splendid contribution to expedition of the war and an earlier victory. The railroads of the nation contributed magnificently to that end and have been rewarded by an anti-trust suit, which, even if it does have any foundation, which is doubtful, might well have been deferred in the interest of speedy victory. Other business has been similarly rewarded. The Roosevelt administration has a queer sort of appreciation of outstanding war efforts, but this is only a part of its program to superimpose the New Deal so-called reform program regardless of the war.

Propaganda That Must Be Ignored

ALL THE SPECULATION on what the Nazi leaders will do when they have only the choice of suing for peace or risking the personal consequences of invasion and possible capture and trial does not rule out the test of character which the mass of Germans will face when defeat overwhelms them.

In the impending crisis, German propaganda will work overtime to ring the changes on the peace-loving character of the German masses. They will be depicted as interested in their homes and children, as spending their leisure in quiet walks in the country and submitting their sensitive natures to the joys of music.

All this emphasis on the Christian virtues of the average German will, of course, be the work of the Prussian military caste. These junkies may even go so far as to set the whole Nazi political regime apart as a nightmare of coercion and cruelty inflicted upon the German people under the inspiration of Mussolini. The Junker leaders certainly will try to blame Russia for becoming so strong that it terrorized the peaceful German people with visions of a communist Germany.

Undoubtedly this propaganda will have some effect. It will soften the determination of the victorious countries to carry out their threat to punish the German leaders for such acts of cruelty as pass the understanding of civilized people. Already the Russians have indicated that Germany must be helped to regain its ability to live under a fairly generous enemy. The Junker overlords will not fail to make the most of their possible nuisance role in the general economy of Europe.

But it is this coddling of Germany following the last war that hurt its people so badly that they were unable to govern themselves as a republic.

There is no reason to believe that they will do any better this time if they are permitted to whine and weep their way out of the consequences of their savage brutality. They are not peace-loving, they are not interested in their homes and children. They are cultural frauds, and they are cowards in the face of truth. To treat them as anything else is the worst possible way to preserve the peace of the world.

Bricker Puts It In A Nutshell

GOVERNOR BRICKER, Republican vice-presidential nominee, has the facility of pithy expression. He deserves credit and thanks for compressing the paramount issue of this campaign into a nutshell so that all can see and understand it.

The transcendent issue is the rescue of representative government after twelve years in which the New Deal has built up a gigantic federal bureaucracy in a deliberate attempt to regiment the American people and destroy their liberties. The issue is vital. There are many others, as Bricker says, but as he also says they all add up to the major one.

"Shall our American constitutional system be restored?" he asks. "Or shall Congress and the courts be permanently relegated to minor roles? Shall government be kept close to the hearts and hands of the American people? Or shall local authority be irrevocably usurped by a highly centralized national government? Shall America become a land of freedom and opportunity for the individual? Or will it continue to be a land in which the individual is becoming more and more a pawn of bureaucracy?"

And then these questions are so squeezed into striking, thought-provoking nutshell form: "In short, the issue of 1944 is—shall the United States continue to be a republic?"

Yes, that is the issue, boiled down to the foundational bottom.

Neely's Thirst Is Not Yet Quenched

APPOINTMENT by West Virginia's Governor Neely of Cabell Davis, brother-in-law of Clarence W. Meadows, the Neely nominee for governor on the Democratic ticket, to head the state department of unemployment compensation, is taken generally in that state as proof that the Neely-Meadows tie-up is so close that Meadows already has had a hand in passing out patronage.

The election of Meadows, Republicans point out, would simply mean a continuation of the "Neelydeal" for four years. Davis is said to be well qualified for the post, which was recently relinquished by Homer W. Hanna, the state administration's original swing-shift man, but the chances are that Davis would not have received the appointment if it had not been for his relation to Neely's gubernatorial candidate.

Anti-Neely Democrats in West Virginia have come to realize that the defeat of Neely for the United States Senate in 1942 didn't quench that politician's thirst for power and a place on the public pay roll. They realize also that his defeat for Congress in the First district this fall will not quench that thirst. They know now, as does the rest of the state, that to rid West Virginia of Neely and the "Neelydeal," they will have to help defeat his protégé, Meadows, for the governorship this fall, and that is what they are going to do.

In a recent broadcast Goering told his people eating a ham sandwich in public was bad taste. In Germany it is evidence that a crime has been committed.

Food and other relief materials costing $41,000,000 have been sent to Greece by Allied nations. The Greeks should have a word of thanks for that.

The good old days were when newspaper readers had nothing to write the editor about but complaints over Main street chuck holes.

That postwar deal with the built-in garbage chute sounds like an ideal piece of furniture for the editor of the poet's corner.

Forgive Yourself, Too

By MARSHALL MASLIN

Old Sad-Face, I know what's wrong with you. You can't get your sins out of your mind. Remorse eats away at your heart, and you rake the dead ashes over and over vainly, sadly.

You've never learned how to forgive yourself. You think it's a sin to forgive yourself for any of the things you have done, because a man should pay and pay for his mistakes. Other people may forgive him but he mustn't forgive himself—that's what YOU think, old Gloomy Gus.

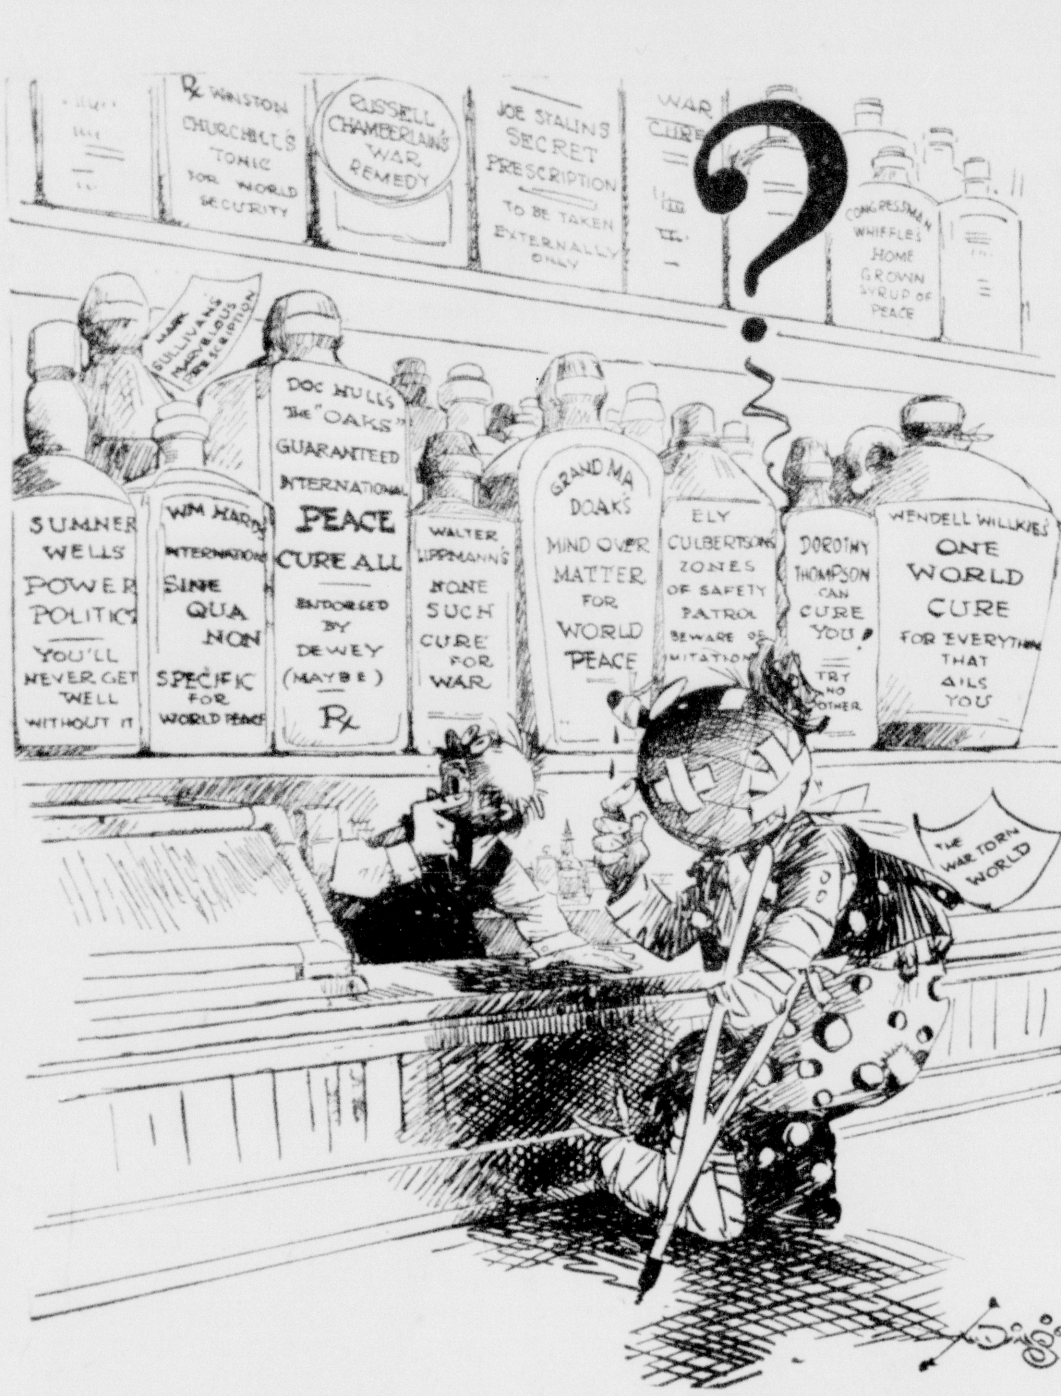

Well, I'm not so sure. I know what you'll say if I suggest that people would be happier if they knew more about forgiving themselves. You'll say I might as well give whiskey to a drunk, morphine to an addict, as to suggest that people should be more forgiving to themselves, because that, you may, is the easiest thing men do. They shake off their responsibilities as a dog shakes off water. They buck em off as easily as bronco a baby. They need no help in freeing themselves of their remorse.

Yes, I know we're like that. Most of us find it easy to absolve ourselves of blame and put the responsibility on the other fellow. But a few are different. They load themselves with trouble and delight in suffering. They are proud of their guilt. They tear their hair and black their teeth and cry and cry. "I can't forgive myself! That's vanity, not humility; that's pride, not grief. And it's shameful and ridiculous."

Once in a while we should stand off and see ourselves as little people not entirely responsible for our own actions. When we make a mistake, it's unfortunate—no sin. When we blow up, it's a forgivable accident—no mortal offense. And we needn't be claiming it for one. We made a mistake, that's all, and we needn't be so proud of it. A sin may be hard work, but anybody can make a mistake.

So, old Gloomy Gus, forgive your self and start over. To me you grieve, the more you delay your start, the more you delay, the more you stick in the mud. Say you're sorry, get going by doing something decent again—and get on your feet.

THE ONLY SURE CURE

Republican Victory Is Read in Southern Disaffection and the Election in Maine

By MARK SULLIVAN

This is the eighth week preceding the November election. As the week began, the common judgment of observers and political leaders in both parties was that the election would be close. The indication of national polls was the same, with a slight tendency to point, if anything, toward success for Mr. Roosevelt.

Then, during the week, occurred two events which pointed markedly toward Republican success. One was the Democratic state convention in Texas. Superficially the outcome of that convention was a triumph for the pro-Roosevelt faction over the anti one. But this outcome, and the Texas situation as a whole, with its history from the beginning, calls for close examination.

Two Conventions

In Texas, in presidential election years, two state conventions are held, with separate functions. The first, held last May to deal with the national ticket, was strongly anti-Roosevelt. It named anti-Roosevelt Democrats to serve as the state's twenty-three electors in November. The second convention, held last Tuesday, its function to deal with the state ticket. But the pro-Roosevelt Democrats announced that, if they got control of the convention, they would repeal the action of the previous convention. They did control, by an extremely narrow majority, and named a new list of electors instructed to vote for Mr. Roosevelt.

Thus the situation stands. There will be a court action to determine whether the second convention had legal authority to overturn the first one, whether the new list of Roosevelt electors shall be printed on the ballot, or the old list having discretion to vote for some other Democrat.

Regardless of the outcome of court action, the significant facts are these:

In one state convention, anti-Roosevelt forces had a large majority. In the other convention, pro-Roosevelt forces had an extremely narrow majority.

LEADS FIRST ARMY

LEADING the American First Army in the spectacular drive into Germany is Lt. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges. This first permanent penetration of Hitlerland was made near the German town of Trier.

Extremely narrow majority—twenty-nine delegates out of a total of 137. At bottom, this seems that a very large number of Texas Democrats, apparently close to half, are bitterly opposed to Mr. Roosevelt. To what extent the intensity of their opposition will lead them to vote against Mr. Roosevelt in November, no one can know. But it is certainly tenable to suppose that a considerable number of Texas Democrats will vote for Mr. Dewey. Whether it will be enough to carry Texas for Mr. Dewey is not the heart of the matter.

In Other States Too

This same opposition by Democrats to Mr. Roosevelt exists latently in all the states—it merely happened to become conspicuous in Texas. In states in which the normal margin between Republicans and Democrats is small—and there are many such states, some of them large, defection by a very small percentage of Democrats would throw such states to Mr. Dewey.

The other event last Tuesday pointing toward Republican success in November was the Maine election. The true rule about Maine is that, if in the September election Maine goes Republican by a large majority, say from sixty to sixty-five per cent, then the country as a whole is likely to go Republican in November. Last Tuesday, the Republican majorities in Maine, for the four officers involved were all much above the dividing point, ranging from sixty-eight per cent to seventy-seven per cent. To question this outcome as an index of Republican success throughout the country, next November, it would be necessary to assume that there is in this presidential election, some new factor potent enough to go contrary to past precedents.

Profit Motive Is Aiding Mankind, Pettengill Says

By SAMUEL B. PETTENGILL

A southern clergyman, for many years editor of a religious journal, writes:

"I am sorry to say," he says, "that in my humble judgment, evangelical Christianity is now more impeached and undermined than it has been for centuries. And this, it seems to me is one of the chief factors in the threatened breakdown of modern civilization. The spectacle of the Protestant church turning away from the spiritual mission to which Christ assigned it to become a part of the movement to break down capitalism, free enterprise, and individualism, and set up socialism in the world, is as I see it, a sad and portentous one. I am far from being a Roman Catholic, but it sometimes seems to me that the present pope is the most sane and sagacious church leader on the stage of action at this time."

Minority for Communism

The great majority of clergymen of all faiths are loyal to constitutional government and our free enterprise system. A minority, however, some of them highly placed, are either friendly to or the outright advocates of communism and the abolition of private property. These good people see the evils in our system and are so impatient to correct them that I am afraid they overlook the magnificent forest by riveting their attention on the dead branches on the ground. They are hostile to the profit motive and advocate "production for use."

One of the greatest of historians wrote that country to the saying that the love of money is the root of all evil, the fact is that the love of money translated into the love of things—homes, furniture, etc., has done more to lift mankind out of barbarism into civilization

Secret Weapons Warn of Danger Of Future Wars

By CENTRAL PRESS

WASHINGTON—Persons familiar with technological advances in death-dealing weapons stress the importance of eternal vigilance in the future, and warn of the danger of smug reliance on any kind of "Magnet Line."

Even an international police force, it is argued, could easily become a "Magnet Line" if it is permitted to fall into decay, and if it assumes that any future war should be fought with the weapons and tactics of World War II.

Emphasis is being placed in some responsible quarters on the idea that the forces against aggression must see to it that they are constantly more powerful than the forces for aggression with respect to every device and means for conquest.

The strictest secrecy surrounds the progress that is being made in the development of death-dealing weapons. Virtually this whole area of scientific progress is kept absolutely hush-hush for reasons of security.

A hint of what is being done by the enemy, however, was the recent report of an explosion in France that shook buildings in England—across the channel. Several other explosions of similar intensity have led to reports that the Germans may have discovered an explosion of unprecedented power which they are unable to control at the present time.

Some officials suggest that the inventors of such things should be shot at once—before they can pass on their secret to others, but the practicability of such a step is doubted.

Japs Face Big Problem

The Japanese high command must be running around in circles trying to figure out where the next series of major American blows and invasion thrusts will come.

Gen. Douglas MacArthur has announced his intention to move back to the Philippines, but, of course, he is not telling the Japs where or when he will strike. The enemy must be prepared to defend all the numerous islands in the archipelago—almost an impossible task.

Meanwhile, forces under Adm. Chester W. Nimitz, are threatening the whole string of Japan's inner defenses from the North Pacific ocean to the Java sea. The naval officers have not helped Jap morale by promising that the blows to come will make the mighty assaults of Task Force 58 seem like a "summer zephyr."

Here are some of the problems faced by the Jap high command:

- 1—It must be on the alert against an American move into the Kuriles from the Aleutians and Marianas.
- 2—The strategic Bonin and Volcano islands must be bolstered to Christ and his ministers teach us to care for the halt and the blind. How many of these shut-ins have had their lives enriched by the radio bringing not only music and lectures, but the greatest sermons to their bedside? How many deaf people have been made useful citizens again by modern hearing aid devices? What saint of the church has done more for mankind than those who even in the last few years have brought out the sulfa drugs and penicillin? For them credit must be given not only to the scientist, but to the business man who in search of profit bring down prices in order to attract sales and thus bring these lifesaving drugs within the reach of millions.

A century ago women and little children were harnessed like animals to cars bringing coal to the surface of the mines. Charles Dickens and other noble-hearted men protested against these conditions. Nevertheless it was the inventor, the producer and the salesman of power machinery who made it cheaper to bring coal to the surface of the ground on the backs of iron slaves than on the backs of women and children.

Are not the pioneers of the auto industry such as Henry Ford and those who have constantly improved this modern means of transportation entitled to credit for breaking down sectional antagonisms, for making America a nation of neighborly people, and for making it possible for workmen to live at a distance from the factories where they work thus going far to eliminate slums?

prevent an American move northward from Guam and Saipan.

3—Palau and Yap now lie within striking distance of American forces both under Nimitz and MacArthur.

4—The Japs must consider the possibility that Nimitz or MacArthur, or both, may move into the Philippines.

5—The oil-rich East Indies could also be a target which the Japs cannot ignore yet they are faced with the problem of using their crippled shipping to move in supplies and reinforcements.

Lewis Strategy Seen

Labor observers are convinced that John L. Lewis directed the strategy behind the strikes of mine supervisory employees which treated on to close pits vital to steel production. At United Mine Workers headquarters in Washington, the comment was merely that "District 50 is autonomous—we have no control over those fellows."

However, District 50 always has been guided by Lewis's top aides, and the bushy-browed labor boss often has used this catch-all unit to expand his unionizing activities. It is considered very doubtful that any autonomy granted by Lewis would extend to the point of letting local union chiefs cause such a rumpus as to provoke federal seizure of mine properties. Lewis would know about anything that big.

The U.M.W. is a tightly supervised organization and District 50, to which the mine supervisors and foremen belong, is very definitely a part of it.

Oregon Political Sentiment Seen As Shifting Toward Roosevelt

By GEORGE GALLUP
Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

Princeton, N. J., Sept. 15—After leaving Seattle, the Dewey campaign train will head next week into Oregon, where the political race today is a nip and tuck affair.

Although Governor Dewey held a slight edge in Oregon in the August polling of the Institute, latest survey results from the state indicate a gain for Roosevelt. This takes Oregon out of Dewey's column, and puts it in the list of states leaning toward Roosevelt by a slight margin.

The situation today, as compared to August, is shown below. Oregon voters were asked how they would Governor Dewey is scheduled to confer with party leaders in the state and to give a major address in Portland. The big question is whether his visit will result in pulling the state back into the Republican column.

That question is important to the G. O. P. because Oregon's six electoral votes would help to offset the eight electoral votes of Washington, where Roosevelt has a substantial popular lead today. Future surveys by the Institute will reveal the effect of the Dewey visit.

From Oregon, Governor Dewey will go to California. The political situation in that state, as revealed in the latest Institute survey, will be reported tomorrow.

Increase Is Noted In Applications For Extra Shoes

Since September 1 more applications for extra shoe allowances have been received at the local War Price and Rationing Board than were handled during the entire month of August, said yesterday.

Stating that 1,369 applications for shoes were handled in August, Radcliffe said that 1,625 applications have already been granted to residents of Allegany county so far this month. The current shoe stamp, airplane stamp No. 2, became valid May 1, and applications for extra allowances dropped sharply during May and June, with only a slight increase in July, Radcliffe stated.

During the month of August, however, nearly twice as many applications were received as were handled during the preceding three months, the chief clerk said, pointing out that the August total has already been exceeded so far this month. Radcliffe attributed the increase partly to the reopening of county schools, explaining that many parents lacked sufficient shoe stamps to purchase school shoes for their children.

Radcliffe predicted that applications would continue to rise sharply until November 1, when the next shoe stamp, airplane stamp No. 3, goes into effect.

Whiteman Leads Fort Hill to 31-6 Win over Keyser in Grid Opener

City's Top Scorer in 1943 Tallies Four Touchdowns,
One on 68-Yard Run

Don "Bubbles" Whiteman, the city's top scorer last season, led the West Virginians to a total of eighty-four yards gained—sixty-two on running plays and twenty-two on four of seven passes completed. Penalties were thirty-five yards against the Hillmen and thirteen against Keyser. The lineups:

Whiteman went over for four of the touchdowns with Ralph Beard who had been on the injured list, tallying the other in the closing minutes of the final period.

Fort Hill took a 6-0 lead in the opening quarter with Whiteman cutting through right tackle for twenty-nine yards and the touchdown after "Zek" Zeller recovered the fumble on the Keyser twenty-nine. Whiteman's placement for the extra point was wide.

Keyser tied the score early in the second quarter after recovering a bad pass by the Fort Hill center on the local's seventeen. Trentum and Dick Wheeler moved the ball to the six as the quarter ended.

On the play of the second round Trentum went through right guard for the touchdown. On the try for point, Jerry Hines fumbled.

On the kickoff, Don McGill fumbled but Stan Zollner, a teammate, recovered on the Fort Hill forty. After a pass fell incomplete, Whiteman knifed through right tackle for twenty-nine yards and short gains by McGill, Whiteman and Dick White put the weather on the Keyser six. After McGill made three, Whiteman crashed over. Whiteman's kick for the point again was wide.

Early in the third session, Whiteman galloped sixty-eight yards for the third Fort Hill score, going through right tackle and then cutting to the left. Ralph Beard's kick for the point failed. Later in the same stanza, Keyser marched to the Fort Hill twenty-three where it lost the ball on downs.

The fourth Sentinel touchdown drive started at that point and with White, Whiteman and McGill sparking the march, the Hilltoppers advanced to the ten. White failed to gain at center and Whiteman, on two plays, went over. Whiteman's placement for a point was no good.

The final Fort Hill score came after a march of fifty-nine yards. Taking over on their forty-one following a Keyser kick, the Sentinels reeled off four first downs on as many plays to move to the Keyser five. The Golden Tornado was penalized halfway to the goal for offside. Beard gained two at right guard, McGill lost one at right end and then Beard went through left guard for the six-point gain. Beard then kicked the only extra point of the contest.

Fort Hill made fourteen first downs, while Keyser had only five. The Hillmen's offense was efficient, while the Keyser defense was sloppy.

CHICAGO, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Chicago Cubs edged out Morton Cooper, 2 to 1, today to extend the St. Louis Cardinals' losing streak to five games, their longest slump of the season, but then the Chicagoans kicked in three runs to help the Redbirds snap the streak, 3 to 2, in the second game of a doubleheader.

Ted Wilks, after retiring the first thirteen Cubs to face him in order, pitched eight-hit ball in the nightcap to score his sixteenth victory against three defeats. The Cards got five hits off Hy Vandenberg and Bill Fleming only one of which came in the sixth inning when the St. Louisans scored all their runs. A pass, a fumble by Stan Hack, and a poor throw by Vandenberg went with Danny Litwiler's double for the tallies. Both errors were on bunts.

St. Louis has had trouble behind the plate and unexpected leaks around the middle of the infield where Don Gutteridge and Vern Stephens have fallen off from their early summer play. Either Mike Kreevich or Milt Byrnes is a capable center fielder but neither is a robust hitter.

Boston's catching department was hurt by the induction of Hal Wagner and departure of Second Baseman Bobby Doerr was a telling blow despite Jimmy Bucher's hustling. George Metkovich, in center, boasts a twenty-five game hitting streak but leaves something desired as a fielder.

Big Ten's Quartet of Games
Highlights Today's
Meager Program

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Big Ten, where the Associated Press's weekly football poll for the past eight seasons has located the country's best eleven, open its 1944 campaign tomorrow with a quartet of games to highlight a meager national program.

Michigan, which shared the loop title with Purdue last year, must show midseason form in its struggle with the Iowa Seahawks, coached this season by Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, formerly of Auburn. Other top games in that area find Lt. Paul Brown turning loose his Great Lakes squad against Fort Sheridan, Illinois, opposing Illinois' Normal and Port Knoch visiting Indiana.

Most of the day's activities are concentrated in the Midwest although Tufts tangles with Harvard, Bucknell and Muhlenberg give the new eastern intercollegiate a trial and Rochester makes its second start of the season against Rensselaer.

In the south, southwest and far west generally have delayed their opening contests until next week.

Brewers and Centerville Launch Pen-Mar League Series Tomorrow

Queen City and Reds Meet for Loop Honors for
Third Straight Season

Cumberland's Queen City Brewers, who compiled the loop's longest winning streak in taking the last half flag, and the Centerville Reds, who carried off first-half honors, will open their five-game series for the Pen-Mar Baseball League's 1944 championship tomorrow afternoon at Centerville, Pa.

This will be the third straight season the Brewers and Reds have met in loop playoff series. Centerville captured the crown a year ago while in 1943, the Brewmen emerged with the title. The Reds won three straight games in the 1943 series while in 1942, when the title playoff was a three-game affair, the Brewers won the last two after losing the opener.

Reds Have .299 Batting Mark
Manager Alton Nave's Reds didn't play as good a brand of ball during the second half as they did in the opening dash. The team batted .309 in the first half and .299 in the last half. Pilot Nave believes his team's slugging mark would have been higher in the home stretch if he had used his regulars instead of a number of boys who didn't see much service in the opening round.

The series could go either way and the way things stack up, the team that gets the breaks should win. Nave plans on using players who hit around .300 during the regular season and if the Reds get any pitching at all, they will be tough to beat.

Firemen, Frostburg
Clash for Victory
Honors Tomorrow

The Cumberland Iron Firemen and Frostburg American Legion tossers will make another effort to decide the 1944 championship of the Victory Junior Baseball League tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Frostburg State Teachers' college field.

The Firemen and Frostburg, after winning preliminary series with Lonaconing Legion and Cumberland Legion, respectively, met earlier this week but the game was called after five innings on account of darkness with the Mountain City outfit in front 3-1.

Tomorrow's contest will be a complete game with the teams starting from scratch.

Manchester, England, Sept. 15 (AP) — Jack London, West Hartlepool giant, outpointed Freddie Mills in fifteen fast rounds today to win the vacant British and British Empire heavyweights boxing championships.

Big Ten's Quartet of Games
Highlights Today's
Meager Program

By HAROLD CLAASSEN
NEW YORK, Sept. 15 (AP) — The Big Ten, where the Associated Press's weekly football poll for the past eight seasons has located the country's best eleven, open its 1944 campaign tomorrow with a quartet of games to highlight a meager national program.

Michigan, which shared the loop title with Purdue last year, must show midseason form in its struggle with the Iowa Seahawks, coached this season by Lt. Comdr. Jack Meagher, formerly of Auburn. Other top games in that area find Lt. Paul Brown turning loose his Great Lakes squad against Fort Sheridan, Illinois, opposing Illinois' Normal and Port Knoch visiting Indiana.

Most of the day's activities are concentrated in the Midwest although Tufts tangles with Harvard, Bucknell and Muhlenberg give the new eastern intercollegiate a trial and Rochester makes its second start of the season against Rensselaer.

In the south, southwest and far west generally have delayed their opening contests until next week.

Brewers and Centerville Launch Pen-Mar League Series Tomorrow

Queen City and Reds Meet for Loop Honors for
Third Straight Season

Cumberland's Queen City Brewers, who compiled the loop's longest winning streak in taking the last half flag, and the Centerville Reds, who carried off first-half honors, will open their five-game series for the Pen-Mar Baseball League's 1944 championship tomorrow afternoon at Centerville, Pa.

This will be the third straight season the Brewers and Reds have met in loop playoff series. Centerville captured the crown a year ago while in 1943, the Brewmen emerged with the title. The Reds won three straight games in the 1943 series while in 1942, when the title playoff was a three-game affair, the Brewers won the last two after losing the opener.

Reds Have .299 Batting Mark
Manager Alton Nave's Reds didn't play as good a brand of ball during the second half as they did in the opening dash. The team batted .309 in the first half and .299 in the last half. Pilot Nave believes his team's slugging mark would have been higher in the home stretch if he had used his regulars instead of a number of boys who didn't see much service in the opening round.

The series could go either way and the way things stack up, the team that gets the breaks should win. Nave plans on using players who hit around .300 during the regular season and if the Reds get any pitching at all, they will be tough to beat.

Firemen, Frostburg
Clash for Victory
Honors Tomorrow

The Cumberland Iron Firemen and Frostburg American Legion tossers will make another effort to decide the 1944 championship of the Victory Junior Baseball League tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock on the Frostburg State Teachers' college field.

The Firemen and Frostburg, after winning preliminary series with Lonaconing Legion and Cumberland Legion, respectively, met earlier this week but the game was called after five innings on account of darkness with the Mountain City outfit in front 3-1.

Tomorrow's contest will be a complete game with the teams starting from scratch.

Masons Will Hold Susan Bumphrey Banquet To Mark Dies at Her Home Anniversary

Committee To Be Named To Plan for Event November 22

By RUDOLPH NICKEL
FROSTBURG, Sept. 15.—Masons of the Grand Lodge No. 99, A. F. and A. M., the oldest Masonic lodge in Allegany county and the parent of all Masonic bodies in Frostburg, is planning to observe its nineteenth anniversary November 22 with an anniversary banquet, probably at the Alt Chan Shrine club in Cumberland.

The members at their first full meeting last evening authorized their worshipful master, Charles McFarland, whose birthday falls on the anniversary of the lodge, to appoint a committee at the next meeting to begin preparations for the event. It has been the custom of the lodge for the past half century to hold an elaborate anniversary observance every five years.

Lodge Founded In 1854
The lodge, which at the present time has the largest membership in its long history, was chartered by the Grand Lodge of Maryland November 22, 1854, the charter being issued to Samuel M. Haller, worshipful master; David Percy, senior warden; Robert Tennant, junior warden; George Tennant, senior deacon; Albert Hollie, junior deacon; M. M. Townsend, secretary; and Harry R. Atkinson, treasurer. The original officers were installed by Charles H. Orr, at that time a past master of the Grand Lodge of Maryland.

The lodge owns its own building at 76 East Main street, which is occupied also by Orr Chapter No. 26, Royal Arch Masons, Mountain Council No. 17, Royal and Select Masters and Mountain Chapter No. 15, Order of the Eastern Star.

Lyons Rites Held
Funeral services for James William Lyons, 69, who died Wednesday morning at his home, 31 Hill street, were held yesterday at 9:30 a. m. at St. Michael's Catholic church, with the Rev. Francis E. Montgomery, assistant pastor, celebrant of the requiem mass. The pallbearers were John Loughney, John Rafferty, Irvin Kyle, Anthony Via, Harry Winner and Quentin Spiker. Interment was in St. Michael's cemetery.

Pfc. Ruddle Cited
Pfc. Ralph H. Ruddle, a resident of Hershey, Pa., and a brother of Mrs. Noel Speir Cook, this city, has been decorated with the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action on the Italian front. He previously received the Good Conduct medal and the Purple Heart for wounds received on the Anzio beachhead. The citation accompanying the Silver Star award credits Pfc. Ruddle with remaining alone for five hours in a position near Isola Bella, Italy, to hold off enemy riflemen who were attempting to attack through a gap in the front line when a machine gun was knocked out.

"Armed only with a carbine," the citation continues, "Pfc. Ruddle kept the enemy back until American troops could move in and close the gap."

Sgt. Finn Wins Medal
Mr. and Mrs. James E. Finn, 114 Mt. Pleasant street, received word that their son, Sgt. Joseph T. Finn, has received the Silver Star medal for gallantry in action in France. Sgt. Finn, a graduate of Beall high school and the Scranton, Pa., school of mechanical drawing, was inducted April 29, 1941 and went overseas in October, 1942.

The citation accompanying the award states: "During an attack by the enemy on his company's position, Sgt. Finn, acting as observer for mortar fire, became the sole objective of an enemy machine gun. With complete disregard for his personal safety, Sgt. Finn remained at his post and through his brilliant observation for the mortars, was directly responsible for forcing the enemy to withdraw. While this retreat was still in progress, Sgt. Finn accurately placed small arms fire on the fleeing enemy troops, killing two of the enemy. The gallantry and great courage displayed by Sgt. Finn reflect great credit on himself and the military service."

Pipeline Leakage May Cause Loss Of City Water

3,000,000 Gallons Daily May Be Seeping from System

The possibility that Cumberland is losing 3,000,000 gallons of water daily through pipeline leakage was suggested yesterday in figures supplied by a competent local resident who preferred to remain anonymous.

Roughly speaking, he said, weather conditions and water abundance in May 1943 were similar to the conditions existing this past May and figures taken from articles published in The Cumberland News indicated that in May 1943 the daily average water consumption was 9,500,000 gallons while in May of this year the average daily consumption was one million gallons more.

This increase, however, the spokesman said, can be accounted for in the use of an additional million gallons of water daily by the Kelly-Springfield Tire Company, but, he added, consumption at the Celanese plant this past May was curtailed by more than 2,000,000 gallons daily.

Survey Disclosed Leaks
Last year there was a similar scarcity of water and the Pitometer Company, experts in checking pipelines for leakage, was called in and after completing a survey disclosed that 1,600,000 gallons of water were leaking from Cumberland's pipelines every day.

With the plugging of this leakage and the 2,000,000 gallon daily curtailment at the Celanese plant from three and one-half to four million gallons of water are saved daily, he explained.

Despite this saving, he emphasized, consumption in May this year was one million gallons more daily than it was in May 1943. The Kelly plant is using an additional million gallons of water daily, but that does not account for the rest of the saved gallons, he pointed out.

According to the local resident, the water could easily leak from the pipes in Cumberland's old water system that has several times been inundated by floods, and would never be noticed.

Cost Equals Wages
A survey could be completed by the Pitometer Company at a cost between $5,000 and $8,000, just about enough to pay the salary for two weeks of Celanese plant employees who have been furloughed because of the critical water shortage, he said.

If leaks are found, they can be plugged and the water saved would relieve the critical situation. Even if no leaks are found, he added, the city would at least have the satisfaction of knowing the system is tight.

In his mind, he said, the city is confronted with three problems in connection with the water supply. First, not enough water can be impounded in the two dams to meet demands in event of a severe drought such as was experienced in 1942. At the time consumption had to be curtailed because not enough water was impounded and this indicates that if the city again should be confronted with an unusual drought, sufficient water again could not be impounded.

Pipeline Inadequate
Second, the spokesman said, when there is a sufficient water supply in the lakes, enough of it cannot be piped to Cumberland to meet the demand. The present pipeline is inadequate, he asserted, adding that he believes in view of the critical local situation, WPA approval could be obtained for materials to construct an auxiliary line.

Third, he related, there is the difference between figures for consumption and savings already effected, which may indicate leaks in the system. A correction of the leakage would be the quickest way to relieve the present situation, he said.

Allegany-Garret Hunters Kill over 2,000 Squirrels

Scarcity of Mast Is Blamed for Spotty Game Conditions

Although few hunters managed to kill their six squirrel bag limit on the opening day of Maryland's hunting season, Joseph A. Minke, regional game warden, estimated last evening that from 2,000 to 3,000 squirrels were killed in this area yesterday.

Most of the 1,000 odd hunters who thronged the woods of Allegany, Garrett and nearby Washington counties had bagged from one to three squirrels. Three hunters on Meadow mountain killed their limit of six, Minke said.

Pointing out that hunting conditions are "spotty", the game warden said that on the whole squirrels are not plentiful this year.

The recent drought, which damaged mast, is responsible for the comparative scarcity of game, Minke said. Hickory nuts are scarce, and both hickory and acorns are small and of poor quality in most sections.

Best sections observed yesterday were on Meadow mountain, Siding Hill mountain and Warrior mountain.

Subcontracting a service of the Smaller War Plants Corporation, a government agency, speeds up the production of materials for the armed forces, breaks up bottlenecks—caused by shortages of labor and machinery—for the prime contractor and keeps small plants operating.

A. H. Cooper, area manager, Charleston, W. Va., points out, "Small plants, working on nothing but a single war contract may find that changing war conditions in the various theaters cause a sudden cancellation or cut-back in the contract. Cooper explained, and the SWPC is needed more today than ever before to keep these small plants in operation.

The main function of the SWPC, Cooper said, is to utilize the productive facilities of the small plants for the war effort, even though, at this time, the corporation devotes much of its time to keeping small plants, suddenly deprived of war contracts, going.

Four Schools Fill Quotas in County Milkweed Drive

100 Bushels Picked Since Collection Began Here Last Monday

Students at four public and parochial schools in the Cumberland area have already picked 100 bushels of milkweed floss and have applied for more open-mesh bags in which to continue collecting the floss.

Robert E. Laramy, assistant conservationist of the soil conservation service, announced yesterday, although distribution of 800 open-mesh bags to Allegany county schools was not completed until Wednesday, the 100 bushels distributed to St. Michael's parochial school in Frostburg and public schools in Ellerslie, Flintstone and Piney Plains have already been filled.

Laramy said. Despite the fact that the four schools have reached their quotas, they have applied for additional bags in order to continue the collection, he stated.

Drive Began Monday
Allegany county's drive to collect at least 1,000 bushels of milkweed floss to be a substitute for kapok in lifejackets used in military service began Monday. Although the collection is being handled through the schools, any group may cooperate in collecting the floss, according to Joseph M. Steger, assistant county farm agent. Anyone knowing of unpicked pods should call the nearest school or pick them and turn them over to a school child for delivery to a school.

Milkweed pods are fit for picking only when the seeds are brown, Steger said. They must be picked before the pods open and the floss blows away, he stated, adding that in some of the higher sections of the western part of the county the pods may not be quite ready for picking.

To replace the Java kapok supply cut off by the Japanese, 1,500,000 pounds of milkweed floss are needed by the armed forces. An average of 800 pods will fill the open-mesh bags distributed to the schools and two bags full will provide enough floss for one lifejacket, Laramy said.

Bags Hung on Fire-escapes

The soil conservationist reported that at many schools bags of the floss were hanging out of windows and on fire-escapes, serving the dual purpose of indicating each school's progress in the drive and drying out the green pods.

Collectors are reminded not to pick stems, leaves, immature or empty pods, nor to use other containers than open-mesh bags for more than a few hours. If the pods are packed tightly in a box or heaped together they will mold and spoil the floss, Laramy said. Pods must not be taken indoors until they have been thoroughly dried out by sun and wind.

Schools which have filled their quota of bags are urged to apply for more at the office of Charles Kopp, superintendent of schools, who is in charge of the drive. Other members of the committee include Steger, Laramy, Ralph F. McHenry, county farm agent, and Miss Lillian Compton, assistant superintendent of schools.
